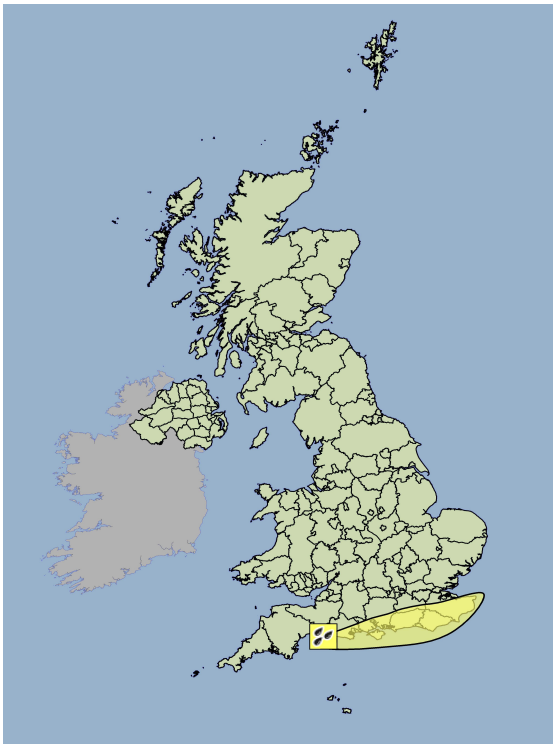
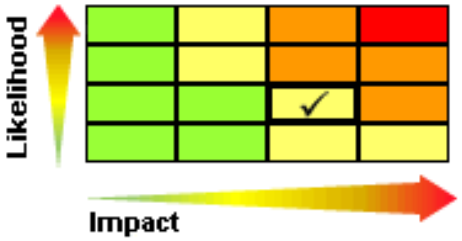
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Showers will move inland from the English Channel at times today, some being heavy with a risk of hail and thunder. Most of the showers will move through fairly quickly giving no more than 2 to 5 mm of rain, but there is the possibility that they will become slow moving in narrow lines through the evening and into the early hours of Thursday, leading to a risk of 20 mm of rain falling very locally within 3 hours, mainly near English Channel coasts.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 07:00 on Wed, 25th Dec 2013 until 06:00 on Thu, 26th Dec 2013

Further heavy showers are likely to affect southern counties of England at times during Christmas Day and into the early hours of Boxing Day.

Following recent heavy rainfall and continuing problems with flooding in some parts of southern England, the public should remain aware of the risk of further disruption to travel.
